

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a measuring arrangement for measuring electrical signals on biological membrane bodies, whereby an electroconductive access into the membrane body is created by gap junction channels.